What's New in the Asset Force?

You can create your own workflows (in this case, an Asset Order) to define how a certain asset must be assigned to a certain user. You can also assign temporary rights (such as "Use as proxy") or permanent rights, so you can limit access to the asset only when necessary. Moreover, you can assign many related assets to each other (for example, assign all "Computers" in a specific room to a specific user). Plus, Asset Force offers many other features such as the possibility to create a detailed report of asset information and even export it to other programs. For a complete list of functions, please check the documentation. The M.A.X.A is a versatile video streaming platform. It allows you to create your own account, which gives you access to the application and its components, both software and hardware (web cam included). Also, it allows you to stream your own video content and to send it to others. In addition to that, the platform allows you to add your own emoticons, which can make video calls even more interesting and fun. M.A.X.A Description: You can create your own account and start using the application immediately. The platform is basically divided into two parts: software and hardware. The software is composed by the "M.A.X.A" application, which controls all features available for a certain user. You can choose to use it in a standalone fashion, which means that you must run it, for instance, on a USB stick. The hardware part is composed by the webcam (included) and the audio device (usually an external microphone). If you don't have a webcam, don't worry, the software provides an alternative feature that will work pretty much the same. Nowadays, due to the popularity of this application, there are many people which have their own devices on hand and that constantly use their webcam to act as a monitor for their favorite streaming applications. M.A.X.A has the possibility to integrate with another application, for example iCam, which allows you to place the camera in the center of the computer screen.
